

The Way the Law Works.

Is the Interstate Commerce Law being observed? Not to any alarming extent. Go around to some Superintendent and ask for a pass, and he will spring the Interstate Commerce Law on you. Go to the contracting agent, or the general freight agent, and if you work in the right way, you will see that the law is evaded with impunity. I don't mean by that all roads are engaged in this sort of business, but many of them are. For instance, the law forbids the payment of rebates on freight. A contracting agent goes to a shipper and says: "See here, I understand that you have 50 carloads of freight to ship to such a point within the next 30 days. Now, I'll bet you $5 a car you don't send it over our line." The bet is made, the goods are sent over the line, the agent of the company loses his bet, and the amount is deducted from the shipper's bill for freight charges. The law forbids paying rebates, but it says nothing about making bets. Then if any influential party wants a pass, the general passenger agent may say: "Sit down and let me dictate a short letter to you." This is done, and on the strength of such service, a pass is made out to the party as an employee of the road.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

A Good Irrigation Bill.

We have on our desk, Senate Bill No. 48. A bill to regulate the use of water for irrigation; settling priority of right thereto; to provide for the condemnation of land for reservoirs; recording claims to water rights and the appointment and duties of a Water Commission. Of the different bills introduced at this session of the Legislature we are of the opinion, after the reading of the bill, that it comes nearer what we want in this State than any heretofore presented. It is the result of the labors of the Committee appointed at a citizens meeting held at the Court House some weeks ago. It provides for the creation of irrigation districts, and the appointment of a Water Commission to each district. There is also a provision for a legal settlement of all questions concerning the appropriation of water and how the same shall be controlled and managed after such settlement in its distribution among the different appropriators; so that there will be no waste. In fact to describe each context of the bill would take more space than at our command. We recommend our readers a careful reading of the bill.

Thaxter's Anti-Lottery Bill.

Mr. Thaxter has introduced a bill to prevent the sale of lottery or raffle tickets, and his idea is to strengthen the law already on the Statute books which provides a penalty of $500 for selling raffle tickets. Mr. Thaxter thinks the present law not strong enough and he now wants to impose a penalty on the District Attorney for not enforcing it. In other words Mr. Thaxter does not seem to have enough moral backbone to close his music box lottery of his own volition, but wants to pass a law forcing the officers to close it. He wants to close down lotteries and raffles but can't quite get to that part where he can close his own. Tickets for the music box raffle still for sale at Thaxter's drug store.

The Sawdust Bill.

Private advices from Sacramento, says the Truckee Republican, are to the effect that what is known as the "sawdust bill" has been reported back to the Assembly by the Fish and Game Committee with a recommendation that it do pass as amended by the committee. The amendment consists in adding another section to the bill, as follows: Sec. 2. This Act shall take effect on and after the 1st day of September, 1889. The amendment is very essential, as it will give the mill-men a chance to adopt a means of disposing of the sawdust without having to close down their mills. The bill will probably pass as amended.
